Alcohol is believed to be a factor in the collision.

"The victim was not wearing a helmet," said Sgt. Tonn, Didsbury RCMP. "Perhaps if he was it may have saved his life. A lot of different factors resulted in the accident though, not just any one.

Summer Blast

Last Thursday afternoon, students at Didsbury High School had the opportunity to participate in the COD Youth Ministerial's 4th event. The event briefly visited the school before heading over to the Zion Church for a night of fun. The fun included an obstacle course, a bungee run, jump boxing, and sumo suits, just to name a few. The event was held for ages 12 to 22 years old.

Teachers were expected to meet in Olds on the evening of June 7 where they could call for a strike vote, said Bob Worsfold, an Olds high school teacher and Alberta Teacher's Association (ATA) 600 - member Local # 17 president.

oman assaulted vice principal

Girl caused accident

A 14-year-old Didsbury-area farm girl who ran her grandmother's car through a red light and into another vehicle on a downtown Calgary street on New Year's Eve has been placed on probation.

The girl, who cannot be named, was sentenced in Didsbury provincial youth court on Monday on charges of carele driving, taking motor vehicle without consent and failing to hold a valid driver's licence.

The girl took her grand-mother's car without permis-sion from the family farm near Didsbury and drove to Calgary to attend a party, court heard. The girl drove through a red light at 3rd Ave. and 5th St. S.W., hitting a car in the intersection and sending both vehi-cles into a nearby sidewalk bar-

Although shaken up, neither the girl nor the driver of the second vehicle, an adult ale, was injured. More than $6,000 damage was done to the vehicles.

Judge Anne Brown placed the girl on probation for one year and ordered her to pay $200 restitution.

Woman assaulted vice principal

A 41-year-old woman has been convicted of attacking a school vice principal in a school in Caroline in October 2003.

Roberta Ellen Kilby was tried before Judge Anne Brown in Didsbury provincial court on May 31 on one charge of assault

Kilby went into the Caroline School, which houses students from Kindergarten to Grade 12, on Oct. 17, 2003 and con-fronted vice principal Stacy Wigley about an alleged tel-ephone call to social services, court heard.

If I found you made that phone call, you're finished, you're through," Wigley testified Kilby told her.

Wigley testified she told Kilby that she knew nothing about any telephone call, and asked her to exit the school,

"I told her she needed to leave," said Wigley.
After shouting obscenities at Wigley, Kilby started to leave the school, but then turned back and struck the victim with a closed fist in the chest.

"She yelled, get your (exple-tive) hands off me' and then she punched me," said Wigley. The 38-year-old victim was shaken but otherwise unhurt in the incident, she testified. School social worker Teresa Sutherland witnessed the assault. She said Kilby was extremely upset and was swear ing in a loud voice prior to strik-ing Wigley.

"I wasn't expecting this," said Sutherland.

After the assault, Suther-land restrained Kilby as Wigley moved away from her attacker, court heard.

Secretary Debra Gail McKenzie testified she heard Kilby shouting at Wigley."
"She (Kilby) was very up said McKenzie, who did not witness the assault.

Kilby testified that she "wanted to clear up the social services issue" when she went to the school shortly after 8

She said she had sent several emails to the victim in the week prior to the incident asking for a meeting to discuss an alleged call to Social Services, as well as the matter of her nieces graduation photograph, which apparently is not hang-ing in the school's graduation

Kilby said she struck Wigley as an act of self-defence when she thought Wigley was going to grab her.

"I was very frustrated," said

Kilby. "I was pretty upset." She testified that she did not swear at anyone during the in-cident, but later admitted using obscenities "once or twice" Judge Brown said she believed the testimony of Wigley and Sutherland and did not believe Kilby's testimony.

"This was an excessive response to an oral confrontasaid Brown.

"Kilby's behaviour was nothing short of appalling.

Crown prosecutor Les Grieve told Judge Brown that the fact the assault occurred inside a school, with numer ous children standing nearby, some as young as five-years-old, was an aggravating factor.

"This was an appalling example for the children," said

The defence asked for an absolute discharge.

Judge Brown handed Kilby a conditional discharge, in-cluding 18 months probation and 50 hours of community service.

She also ordered Kilby to have no contact with Wigley or Sutherland.

Candidates tackle farm crisis

by Dan Singleton

All four candidates in Wild Rose riding say they have workable solutions to the farm crisis that has dev-astated the Alberta agriculture industry over the past year.

A Statistics Canada re-port released on Thursday shows Alberta farm net in-comes fell by 72 per cent in 2003 compared with the pre-

The decline, the steepest in 25 years, is being blamed on the ongoing mad cow crisis and droughts in 2002 and 2003. Overall, the average Canadian farmer's net income fell by 43 per cent. Revenue from livestock fell 11 per cent to $16.2 bil-lion, while crop revenue fell 10 per cent to $13 billion.

The agriculture industry employs thousands of people in Wild Rose, as well as hundreds of thousands of others across the province. Many counties and Municipal Districts in Alberta, including Mountain View County, have made emergency or crisis declarations.

"The first thing that has to happen is that money that is being injected (in aid) has got to reach the farm gate. We hear Paul Martin announcing that there is going to be $1 billion going to the industry, but I can't find any farmers who have gotten any money. Where is it going? We don't know. Obviously they haven't done enough for the farmers."

> -Conservative MP, Myron Thompson

Incumbent Conservative MP Myron Thompson, seek-ing his fourth straight term in the west central Alberta Wild Rose riding, is up against Liberal candidate Judy Stewart, NDP candidate Jeff Horvath, and Green Party candidate Chris Foote.

The Wild Rose riding in-cludes all of Mountain View County, as well as Airdrie, Banff, Cochrane and surrounding communities. Thompson was elected in the riding in 1993, 1997, and 2000

Canadians go to the polls

June 28. Green Party candidate Foote is calling for an independent investigation into he nation's packing meat plants with an eye to find-ing more money for farmers.

"We want the producers to get their share of the food dollar," said Foote.

We want to reform the agriculture industry so that farmers see more money from their products. The price of beef hasn't gone down in Alberta and it appears that packing plants are the ones that are getting the money. There's only two major beef packing plants in Canada which buy up the bulk of the beef, and that isn't good enough competi-tion. Obviously the farmers aren't getting enough money the food.

Foote said if he's elected he will promote a return to smaller, family-owned farms. "It's hard to go back in time but I definitely don't want to see more big factory farms buying up the smaller farms that we still have and turning the farming industry into big business. Part of the problem is our agriculture practices. They are cannibalising the animals and we have to have stricter regulations in place. Herbivores should not be eating other animals, period. That's what has endangered our food supply."

MP Thompson has not done enough to end the BSE crisis or promote safer food supplies, he said.

For his part, Thompson says the Liberal government has done far too little to ensure farmers are getting federal aid.

A Conservative government would "make agricul-ture a first priority", he

Regarding the mad cow crisis, Thompson said if the Conservatives form the gov-ernment they will do more than the Liberals have to seek new markets for Alberta beef.

We must not only do our ery best to encourage the Americans to lift restrictions on the border, but also need to start looking for new markets. We need to start adding value to the products that we have and open new markets, like in Japan and Korea. We need to show some good will.

The Conservatives will create a stability fund to deal with future crisis, he said.

"Is agriculture a top priority or not? If we treat agriculture as a top priority, which we want to do, then we would make absolutely certain that part of our budgets would always be in eserve to deal with situations that are out of the con-trol of farmers," he said. NDP candidate Horvath said MP Thompson and his fellow Conservatives MPs failed Wild Rose farmers when they voted against moves by Parliament to find meat packers in contempt for not releasing financial records related to BSE aid.

"There are a lot of Wild Rose ranchers who should feel a sense of betrayal," said Horvath. "We want to know where that aid money went. For the life of me I can't figure out why the Conservatives are opposed to opening up the books of the packers."

If elected Horvath said he would do more to get the U.S. border reopened to live cattle exports.

"We have to be more firm with them and not let ourselves be pushed around. We understand that they are our best friends but we have to take a stand," he said. The NDP, unlike the Conservatives, supports the re-tention of the Wheat Board,

"We want the Wheat Board to help out farmers and get the best price for wheat. We're still very sup-portive of that. At this time the Wheat Board is more important than ever for our agriculture industry."

The NDP will push for the creation of a stabilization fund to help the industry during times of cri-

"As an Aboriginal person, I see myself and my people as stewards of the land and I definitely see farmers as stewards of the land as well. They are a very important part of Canadian identity. We need to value our farmers and we need to help them out as much as we can.

Liberal candidate Stewart says federal government aid programs an-nounced earlier this spring go a long way toward helping farmers out of cri-

Then the second thing is to put some money out there for people to get crisis help, so if people are going insolvent, get some money for them.

And the third aspect is to look at value-added industries on a regional basis, so we are able to do some manufacturing value-added things here and use our products right here in Alberta.

Making alternative uses for failed ranch areas may be an option for Wild Rose, she said.

"Some places where the cattle industry took a real dive, we need to reinvest in that industry or look at what other products could we use that natural resource for. In some cases it may become a tourist attraction rather than actually trying to recover it as a ranch. There are different opportunities that need to be looked at.

She said she would support investigations into the meat packing industry and its handling of BSE aid.

Learning in Africa

It makes me very sad that there are people in Africa who would normally go without

It never crossed my mind that people would view these

"A Proud Grandma"

by Margaret Fradley

Join the club, all you proud grandparents, I know there are many of you out there. Many of you have told me that you enjoy the stories of my grandchildren, so here is an update. They are such a source of "Ponderings".

Our youngest grandchild just turned three, she is an active, almost elfin little girl, with a great passion for busyness, attempting new things, learning, and just being into everything knew. Recently she was moved to the 'three year old Sunday School class', and the teacher asked them what they knew about Adam and the state of and Eve, Shaylynn, immediately put up her hand and said "I think they must have been nice people, but they sure made a mess of things for us" and continued to share the story. "Out of the mouths of babes," her teacher, I'm sure, could hardly contain herself!!

Shaylynn's older brother, now recently turned five, is a totally different type, have you ever noticed that about our children and grandchildren, there just are not two alike. They are all different, unique and special. Kendrick is a thinker, a ponderer, and needs time to take things in, think about them, and then act on them. Just the other day, our daughter took the two shopping, and when they came out of the store, the little girl suggested they have a race to the car; of course she won hands down, but when her brother arrived moments later, he said "I wasn't worried about winning this time, because I stopped and held the door open for a lady," then he came out with a profound statement, that no one really knows where he picked it up, but, he turned to his mother and said "Isn't that what gentlemen are supposed to do?" Well what do you do with that? For five years of age he has sensitivity and compassion that continues to amaze us.

Let us all enjoy our grandchildren, each in his or her own way, aren't they a delight?

$200 million pledged toward new energy technologies

The development of innovative technologies to maximize recovery of Alberta's oil and natural gas reserves will get a boost through an expanded royalty reduction ogram in partnership with industry.

The strategy provides the impetus for the energy industry to develop new technologies that increase re-source recoveries and improve project economics while supporting Alberta's commitment to seeking solutions to critical environmental issues

Politics have become totally ineffective

Dear Editor:

Listening to CPAC I heard that politics has become totally ineffective. It is really interesting that the Media is beginning to recognize a phenomenon that started with Mulroney and has increased ever since to the point that traditional politicians do not talk; they just make noises.

The economy of Canada began an irreversible downturn, coincidentally, with Mulroney, who be-trayed Canada with the Free Trade Agreement and the GST, a tax for the poor to maintain corporate welfare. My global technical group, Techno Economics International Consultants started in the 80s the research and development of an "engineered economy" with the sole purpose to maximize the wellbeing of human beings, while reducing the corporate vandalism on the planet. My colleagues have developed all the new techniques of bilateral trade that will allow disci-plined democracies to achieve rates vearly growth of about 15%, while rebuilding the environment Now that some Media begin to admit that politics is obsolete it is possible to demand in this election to Layton, Duceppe and Harper to

Dear Editor:

In regards to recent letters concerning homosexuality and marriage, there seems to be a w things some people are not taking into consideration.

Those who believe in a higher being, including Christians, go into their marriage with faith that they have their God's blessing; but other than the blessing of God, there is another major factor. The couple choosing to marry usually have deep heart feelings for each other. The scenario with homosexual couples appears no differ-ent. Freedom to express their feelings publicly and legally is not about religion. Stating your own beliefs and examples is honourable, but not always called for. Many individuals including homosexuals are not asking de-vote religious people to save their soul from eternal damnation; all they are requesting is equality, the ability to walk down e street with their significant other and not be judged. Discrimination will always exist, but an individual does not need to contribute to it by being bias or trying to inflict upon another's choices, or feelings, with

Contract negotiations reached a deadlock on June 1 following a meeting between the sides and the mediator.

Following the June 1 meeting, the CESD said the two sides were "less than half a per cent" apart on the issues.

"We've gone as far as we can, and to part with less than half of 1 per cent difference, I really don't understand their rationale," said Roy Brassard, CESD chairman. "We felt we couldn't go any further."

The ATA cancelled a scheduled June 14 meeting.

The board is now waiting to see if teachers will call for a strike vote, he said.

a strike vote, he said.

"We're really hopeful that the mediator can do something to bring the sides together and work out a resolution," Brassard said, noting the board has tabled numerous proposals, but all have been rejected by the union.

"It seems like there's absolutely no room to bend on our part, and we feel we've gone just as far as we can

The board has already announced plans to layoff more than two dozen teachers, as well as 40 teaching assistant positions.

"Any reduction in teachers impacts significantly on the classroom environment because obviously you can't have smaller classrooms and fewer teachers," he said. "The more teacher positions are impacted, the higher the pupil/teacher ratio has to because that's just the way it works."

"We've reduced everything that we possibly can. Obviously we would do that before any teacher position was let go. Last year we had to draw on $2 million in reserve funds, which isn't available this year to draw on. We've had to reduce our teaching positions."

Meanwhile, ATA Local #17 has filed a complaint with the Alberta Labour Relations Board alleging interference by the Chinook's Edge School Division with their membership.

The complaint, filed Friday, alleges the school board violated the Labour Relations Code by sending an email to members of ATA Local #17.

In the email in question, sent to teachers on June 2, the board said the sides were "less than 0.5 per cent apart" in contract negotiations.

"We're more than a half a per cent apart," said Worsfold. "It's a totally inaccurate press release. The board's communication seems deliberately timed to influence Monday (June 8) meeting. In emailing an inaccurate media release to our members, trustees have undermined the credibility of our bargaining committee and its ability to represent those members."

The ATA is calling for a retraction or correction, he said.

For its part, the Chinook's Edge board plans to continue the practice of emailing teachers, says chairman Brassard.

"We certainly don't intend to violate any labour codes, but we intend to keep people informed, said Brassard. "These are our employees and I think they have the right to know what is going on. We have a basis for our press releases and emails and we intend to keep on doing that."

The Alberta Labour Relations Board is an independent tribunal responsible for interpretation of Alberta's labour laws. The board can make binding rulings.

A strike by teachers in Chinook's Edge closed 40 schools for several weeks in early 2002 before the province legislated teachers back to work.

Mountain View County will be conducting a program to reduce the number of mosquito species that has been found to be the primary vector for transmitting West Nile virus from birds to humans. This will involve the identification of standing water bodies where mosquito larvae develop within the jurisdictional limits of Mountain View County, where landowner permission has been obtained.

The program will involve the control of mosquito larvae only and will operate from June 1 to August 31, 2004, the period when this mosquito species builds up and has potential to spread the virus. Where mosquito species habitat is identified, options to prevent larval development will be identified and considered. One option may be the use of federally-approved larvicides.

The control program is designed to reduce the development of West Nile virus vectors in populated areas - vectors may migrate into control area. The public is cautioned to continue using personal protective measures at peak biting periods, wearing protective clothing, and the use of insect repellents including the active ingredient DEET.

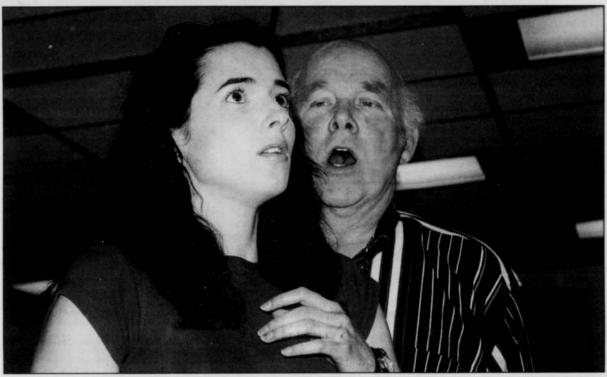

If you have any questions regarding this mosquito control program please call Larry Rice, Ag Fieldman, Mountain View County 335-3311.

Concert brings home local singer

Andrea McCulloch and Allan Monk practice together, getting ready for their concert in Didsbury.

by Tamara Collins

Didsbury's own Andrea McCulloch will appear in concert at the Zion Church Metropolitan opera star Allan Monk, and pianist Edwin Gnandt.

This performance will take place on June 19th at 7:30 p.m.

This will not be the first time Didsburians have welcomed McCulloch back to town to perform, only this time is expected to be quite a bit different. McCulloch as been working beside Monk, picking up valuable tips to help enhance her performances.

"The first time we met was three or four years ago," said Monk. "I then heard her sing again in Regina, and I knew she had something special. I wanted to help put some life into her music."

In the short time the pair has been working together, big changes have helped im-prove McCulloch's perform-ance, and helped her feel more comfortable on stage.

"I have been singing for about six years," said McCulloch. "When I was little I thought I had a good voice, but I didn't really start to develop it until af-ter high school. It has been a journey. I am working with Monk trying to make my performances as natural as possible. If you free everything up the music just

According to Monk, McCulloch has wonderful potential. McCulloch's goal is to one day perform in an opera house.

"I don't care which one," said McCulloch. "Any opera house in the world. I just want to share my passion for opera.

People who will be attending the concert can expect a varied program. Not only will the pair be doing opera, but also some religious de-buts and even some songs that relate to farm life.

"I love going to Didsbury perform," said said McCulloch. "Everyone there has supported me since day one. This time everything will come to life. There will be a lot of laughter, sad moments, and something for everyone, even if you do not like opera."
McCulloch received her music performance diploma from Mount Royal College, then went on to receive her degree in Regina. This past has been spent polishing her technique and performance.

"I plan on applying to some overseas graduate opera programs," said McCulloch. "I will also start doing auditions this fall." McCulloch went to her first voice teacher when she was 17 years old. It was this teacher who first got her singing opera.

"She gave me an Italian song to sing," said McCulloch. "That is when I knew opera is the kind of music I wanted to sing."

Although McCulloch is the first professional musi-cian in the family, her grandma used to be part of the Krebs Orchestra.
"This time when her family sees her perform in Didsbury, they may see twenty five different aspects to her performance," said Monk. "They are in for something different for sure.

Monk is one of the most respected baritones on the operatic stage today. He is known for his in depth interpretations of a wide variety of roles in both the standard and contemporary repertoire.

'I am working with her as a mentor, not a teacher," said Monk. "I offer her suggestions, and she takes them.

Edwin Gnandt has done over 500 performances as a soloist, accompanist, adjudicator and workshop clinician. He has been all over the world performing and accompanying singers.

The concert will include 15 songs, some duets, some

"I am really looking for-ward to this show," said McCulloch. "After these past six weeks with Allan I feel more comfortable performing than ever before.

Beginning and ends

Dear Friends.

This was a week of ends and beginnings. Of course it was the end of School with all the accompanying activities. Chief among the activities for this household was the National Honor Society induction ceremony and tea. Wednesday afternoon the High School had its awards assembly.

At the end the NHS had its induction time. The present members did a good job of explaining that NHS promotes academics, character, leader-ship, and service. They introduced the new members and presented each of them with roses (Janet went to the local rose farm and bought them Wednesday morning). It was a particularly nice touch when one present member intro-duced his sister and wel-comed her to NHS.

Afterwards there was a tea for the NHS members and their families. This required quite a bit of preparation on Janet's part - I was involved as well. In our accountability group we talked about how the stress in our spouses' lives affected our relationships and us. Janet made the punch and froze some strawberries into an ice ring to float in the punch. Several people commented about the punch because of only available in season and Janet had frozen them ahead

Then there was the graduation service Friday evening and the snacks afterwards. Janet went and enjoyed it. I avoided the crowded auditorium and stayed at home. Many families have traveled already - some left today. Our compound will be virtually deserted by next week.

This week also saw me taking on more responsibilities with the Challenge Cinema people. We had a final meeting on Monday and I visited the Gidan Bege (House of Hope) compound Thursday morning.

I'll be making many more visits I'm sure. One pleasant surprise: the man who has taken over Challenge Cinema is also in charge of several other ministries. One of these is the hostel for Nigerian missionaries' children as a fund raising project. dren. As a fund-raising project, these children raise chickens, which they then sell. The time had arrived for the chickens to be sold, so at the meeting on Mon-day we were asked to sign up to buy some chickens. I asked for three chickens. These were de-livered but Peter wouldn't take any money for them. He said they were free because I was taking on the responsibility of look-ing after the Challenge Cinema ministry. It was a nice surprise.

Also this week the wall behind our house was started. Several years ago the School decided to put a cement-block wall around the compound, as is usual for most compounds. Money was budgeted and a contract was given, but before the work could begin some people complained that trees would be cut down and this would not be good. Almost immediately replacement trees were planted but it has been some time before the wall project was revisited. Now the trench for the foundation for the wall has been dug and hopefully within a few weeks we'll have a wall behind our house. For years we've depended on the thorns in the bougainvillea hedge along the chain-link fence to protect us. This week they cut most of that down, so we feel a bit vulnerable just Please pray for safety as many people travel in the next lit-tle while. Also please pray for me as I assume the new responsibilities - I feel quite inadequate for the job. Also please pray for safety for us, especially now without our normal protection (the bougainvillea) but even when the wall is completed. Several foreigners have had armed robbers recently and we wonder if we could be next.

Thank you for your support.

In Christ, Dan for the Snyders with snow and am looking forward to a wonderful warm summer.

The first thing I should mention is what a fantastic time everyone seemed to have at the cabaret. We didn't quite have a sold out crowd, but the evening was a success none the less.

The new crewcab made a quick stop in town the middle of May. Unfortunately there were a couple of problems that prevented us from keeping it until repairs are done. We are all anxious and patiently awaiting it's return.

The members of the DDFD would like to take this opportunity to say a couple of thank you's to Jae from JD's Restaurant and Pub for all her support, both financial and moral. Thank you Jae. To Spencer MacPherson and Palliser Lumber for their donation of an angle grinder. Thank you. Your generosity is greatly appreciated.

By the time this article is published, Scott Nygard and Rob Anderson will have finished taking the S 600 course, (old Pump A). They will be writing their exam soon. I will let you know how they did next time. On June 19, Cremona will be hosting an Emergency Livestock Handling Workshop and several Didsbury Firefighters will be going. This workshop will teach them what to look out for when dealing with injured and scared animals that have been involved in an accident.

Legislature lock-down follows poison-hoax

by Carla Victor

A former Didsbury man was one of the hundreds of Alberta Legislature employees detained, last week, when envelopes containing white powder were de-livered to the Legisla-ture building. Richard Westlund, researcher for Alberta government members, was working in the legislature building where 30 suspicious envelopes had been delivered, May

Even though some of the envelopes were marked flour, officials tested everyone of them for poisonous contents.

"They didn't know for sure," said Westlund. "It was white powder which could have meant a number of things. I guess they couldn't be sure it wasn't dangerous with-out checking."

He said men in contamination suits with air tanks collected the envelopes and legisla-ture staff continued with whatever duties they could, some watched TV when it was available, some called home to notify family they would be late and not to worry. Employees were told it would take about 25 minutes to check each envelope and they could expect to be detained until approximately 9 p.m.

A makeshift lab was set up under the stairs of the legislature. Extra equipment was brought in from Red Deer to help speed the process.

"The atmosphere was pretty relaxed, everyone was more frus-trated than scared," said Westlund.

At 9:30 p.m. legislature building staff were notified the substance was "non-threatening" and they were free to go home.

"At 2:30 p.m. I was thinking, this is kind of exciting; at 6 p.m. I was thinking, this is a pain

"I guess they couldn't be sure it wasn't dangerous without checking."

It was reported that some of the employees were forced to miss their children's graduation ceremonies, which was very distress-

Westlund said this was not the first lockdown for some of the more experienced staff members.

Police have since re-ported a disgruntled retired chemist was re-sponsible for sending the envelopes.

"When I talked to some people they said this kind of thing is to be expected every once in awhile. We realize this can be the result when someone is frustrated. I know, as a former newspaper editor, it's impossible to please everyone." said Westlund.

Local businesses ready to roll at Soap Box Derby

Jessica and Emilie Brolsma

With just a few weeks to spare, businesses in town are busily polishing their cars in hopes of vying for the pole po-sition in the 4th Annual Lions Soap Box Derby. Action gets underway the morning of Saturday, June 19th, at the top of the 582 ring road hill adja-cent to Reimer International.

As one Lions Representa-tive, Fred Morrish, explains Reimer is actually one of the businesses sponsoring a cart in this year's event. "That's right, Reimer will be there participating with the car they've painted up along with another from Fountain Tire here in town."

Entrants in the event come from communities spanning between Bowden to Calgary and range in age from 8 - 14

While certainly an enjoyable and exciting sport to watch, part of the fun of the event comes from constructing the Soap Box car itself. This task, according to Morrish, can be as straightforward or as complicated as you care to make it. "You can either purchase a kit from the Lions Club or build one of your own to their specifications." After that, the design of the car can be pretty much left to your imagination. "We put our decals on the cars we will be entering, but you can pretty much do whatever you

Featured again at the Derby this year are the new ramps the Lions custom-built for the competition. As a note to parents and/or guardians, Lions Club

Representatives have confirmed the fastest car was clocked at over 30 km per hour on the track. The track is protected by straw bales along the edges, and with brakes, helmets, lane markings and good supervision, no mishaps are expected or likely.

Prizes for the Soap Box Derby are determined largely by the number of entrants. It is confirmed, however, that this year there will be a cash prize for every win and there will also be trophies for each category win-ner and, of course, the Grand Champion winner.

The Lions Club would like to thank AG Foods for supplying the hamburgers and hot dogs, Carlson Wagonlit Travel for supplying the pop, and Didsbury Dry Cleaners and many other busiaround town for providing the T-Shirts each contestant gets with admission to the Derby. Thank yous are also ex-tended to Reimer International Inc. for helping provide the prize money and Grant Hemming for providing the sound system. Admission to Didsbury's Soap

Box Derby is just $40.00. Any one still interested in entering the Didsbury's Soap Box Derby is encouraged to give Ray Hannah a call at 335-0008 as soon as possible. "The Didsbury Lions hope to have lots of cars and keen com-petitors out for the day," says Morrish, "...Come out and watch the races and have some fun. There is a concession booth right on site brought to you by the Li-ons Club of Didsbury."

Ag Society invites you to buy a bull rider

The Didsbury and District Agricultural Society is holding a rather unusual sale this month From now until June 16th, members are inviting the pub-lic to actually "Buy a Bull Rider".

The sale is actually part of a promotion they are doing for the 2nd Annual Bull Riding Classic and Cabaret taking place June 19th at 6:00 pm. Event Coordinator, Connie Conley, says Bull Riders can be purchased for just $100.00 per person which gives you a pretty good chance at winning the pot. "There's only 32 Bull Riders to be bought, so your chances are pretty good...These are all Pro-Cowboys from across the country and even some as far off as Australia and Japan."

Conley says she expects the number of Bull Riders up for sale to go quickly. "We already have six sold and we just have a few weeks to go." Last year the winners for the promotion were lo-cal residents. Part of the attraction for the promotion, Conley believes, is the great prize potential. "If the Bull Rider you bought is the one that wins the event at the end of the night, you win half the pot ($1600.00). The other half goes to the Ag Society to run this event."

Anyone interested in pur-chasing a Bull Rider of their own is invited to give the Didsbury and District Agricultural Society a call at 335-4494.

Didsburians reaching out to Africans

A Canadian women handing out the backpacks in Africa.

by Tamara Collins

Didsburians again have the opportunity to help motivate children in Africa to read and compete.

Every summer, Wycliffe Canada's Litsummer. eracy, Education and Development depart-ment (LEAD) collects used backpacks and school supplies that are in good condition and ships them to literacy projects in Africa.

In February, 20 backpacks full of supplies from Didsbury, Carstairs, and Linden schools, were shipped to Ghana, Africa. These 20 among backpacks collected from across Canada. 15,000 students in Ghana participated in reading contests and exams in their mother tongue, to win the backpacks.

"These people have nothing," said Eleanor McKenzie, Backpack for Literacy. "They do not have supplies to read and write. This helps give them a greater interest in literacy.

Every year in Ghana volunteers organize reading classes for students, both children and adults, who don't have a school in their language or community. Some of these students cannot afford paper and pencils, so some backpacks are given to the volunteers to give to these students

Ross Ford Elementary is currently collecting backpacks and supplies to send off again this year. Anyone interested in helping can recycle old backpacks (in good shape), or new ones, and drop them off at the school. Also needed is unused lined, graph and colored paper, exercise books with clean pages, duo-tangs, slates, markers, pencil sharpeners, pencils, pens, crayons, erasers and rulers. You can drop these items off until June 30th. Please do not include three ring binders (Ghana does not have three hole paper), glue, or any liquids, food or games.

Please make sure that all used backpacks do not have holes, and that all zippers and snaps are working. It is also asked you include $10 in your backpack for shipping costs. The backpacks shipped to both Ghana and Kenya.

"Any good, used items can be recycled instead of trashed," said McKenzie. "We are hop-ing to ship these out in

Focus on the Family

QUESTION: Do childhood traumas inevitably twist and warp a person in the adult years?

DR. DOBSON: No. It is well known that difficult childhoods leave some people wounded and disadvantaged, but for others, they fuel great achievement and success. The difference appears to be a function of individual temperaments and resourcefulnes

In a classic study called "Cradles of Eminence," Victor and Mildred Goertzel investigated the home backgrounds of 400 highly successful people. The researchers sought to identify the early experiences that may have contributed to remarkable achievement. All of the subjects were well-known for their accomplishments; they included Einstein, Freud, Churchill, and many others.

The backgrounds of these people proved very interesting. Three-fourths of them came from troubled childhoods, enduring poverty, broken homes or parental abuse. One-fourth had physical handicaps. Most of those who became writers and playwrights had watched their own parents embroiled in psychological dramas of one sort or another. The researchers con-cluded that the need to compensate for disadvantages was a major factor in the drive toward personal achievement.

One of the best illustrations of this phenomenon is seen in

One of the best illustrations of this phenomenon is seen in the life of Eleanor Roosevelt, the former first lady. Being or-phaned at 10, she underwent a childhood of utter anguish. She was very homely and never felt she really belonged to anybody. According to Victor Wilson of the Newhouse News Service, "She was a rather humorless introvert, a young woman Service, "She was a rather humorless introvert, a young woman unbelievably shy, unable to overcome her personal insecurity and with a conviction of her own inadequacy." The world knows, however, that Mrs. Roosevelt rose above her emotional shackles. As Wilson said, "From some inner wellspring, Mrs. Roosevelt summoned a tough, unyielding courage, tempered by remarkable self-control and self-discipline." That "inner wellspring" has another appropriate name: compensation!

Obviously, cools attitude toward a handiege determines its

Obviously, one's attitude toward a handicap determines its impact on his life. It has become popular to blame adverse circumstances for irresponsible behavior; i.e., poverty causes crime, broken homes produce juvenile delinquents, a sick society imposes drug addiction on its youth. There is some truth in this assumption, since people in those difficult circumstances are more likely to behave in destructive ways. But they are not forced to do so. To say that adverse conditions "cause" irresponsible behavior is to remove all responsibility from the shoulders of the individual. The excuse is hollow. We must each decide what we will do with inner doubt or outer hard-

The application to an individual family should be obvious If a child has gone through a traumatic experience or is physically disadvantaged, his or her parents need not give up hope. They should identify his or her strengths and natural abilities so that the child can use them to overcome the hurdle. The problem that seems so formidable today may become the inspiration for greatness tomorrow

QUESTION: You have described two extremes which are both harmful to kids, being too permissive and being too harsh. Which is the most common error in Western cultures today?

DR. DOBSON: Permissiveness is more common and has been since the 1950s. But harshness and severity still occur frequently as well. These dual dangers are equally harmful to children and were described by Marguerite and Willard Beecher in their book "Parents on the Run." This is how they saw the two extremes

"The adult-centered home of yesteryear made parents the masters and children their slaves. The child-centered home of today has made parents the slaves and children the masters. There is no true cooperation in any master-slave rela-tionship, and therefore no democracy. Neither the restrictive-authoritative technique of rearing children nor the newer 'any-thing goes' technique develop the genius within the individual, because neither trains him to be self-reliant. The way to raise healthy children is to find the safety of the middle ground between disciplinary extremes.
